Today's Peyton Manning news is certainly forward progress.

But the move of the quarterback off the physically unable to perform list to the active roster is not a surprise and does not guarantee he's available on opening day.

It had to happen for him to start any level of practice.

Said the Colts in a press release:

"The move is a continuation of the rehab process from offseason neck surgery that Manning underwent. He will participate in practice on a limited basis. All of his practice work will be scripted and on a controlled basis. The participation in limited football activity is a standard procedure in the club's rehab protocol."

The tone there seems to be a loud request that we show restraint in deeming this anything more than a step.

The question is,black baseball jersey, how long until the next step,kids football jerseys, where he's cleared to fully practice?

Fans know him as MacT, friends as Mac. He is a former Oilers team captain, the second longest serving Oilers coach in his seventh season, the current holder of the Oilers flame, and one of the most recognizable men in Edmonton. He's 49 years old now, with a full head of grey hair, but a youthful face and the fit, lanky build of an athlete.

Part of his local fame, cheap custom nfl jersey, with female fans at least, derives from his looks. Readers of the website Hot-Oil.blogspot.com recently voted him as the hottest Oiler in team history, dubbing him the Silver Fox.

“Not only is he hot, he has the best vocabulary — you’ll always learn a new word listening to him (and oh, what a voice), team usa basketball jersey,” said one smitten fan.

“MacT has a George Clooney-esque deliciousness about him,” wrote another.

MacTavish has his male admirers as well, but they focus on his character, cheap NCAA jersey, namely his integrity and loyalty. “If you can’t have a good time with Mac, you’re the problem,” says Hockey Night in Canada analyst Craig Simpson, MacTavish’s former teammate and assistant coach. “In many ways, he’s a man’s man. ... The guys know where they stand with him. He’s honest. He’s witty. He’s got a great sense of humour. He’s very sharp with the verbal wit.

“Mac can do whatever he sets his mind to do,” Simpson continues. “He’s got that capability. He’s got that mental discipline. ... He’s got a winner’s attitude. He was a guy who would pretty selflessly do whatever it would take for the team to have success.

“He’s not worried about the accolades to him. We all have our egos, and part of what drives us to success is our ego. But as a teammate and as a coach, cheap nba basketball jerseys, he’s as conscious or worried about how other people are being treated, 2011 nfl nike jerseys, how other people have success or are being recognized for success, and there’s not a lot of people in the world of hockey who you would necessarily say that honestly about.”

Most of all, Simpson values MacTavish’s friendship. “He’s just a helluva friend. Of all the guys we played with, authentic nfl jersey, Nike Ravens Jerseys, Mac was always the organizer, always making sure guys did things that were fun together, always making things happen, make your own football jersey, and if you had a problem or needed anything, manchester united jersey, that’s the guy you could trust with your life.”

All the MacT-haters of the world — and they’re out there — will be rankled by Simpson’s praise, but whatever the merit of Simpson’s take on MacTavish, it’s indicative of the fierce loyalty that grew out of the success of the 1980s Oilers squads.

In many ways MacTavish was a perfect fit for those close-knit championship teams. He always valued the team. He was a good but not great hockey player as a teen, vintage jerseys, not talented enough to make the top junior league in Canada, nfl new jerseys, but skilled enough to win a scholarship at a Division II American hockey program, football jersey design, the University of Massachusetts at Lowell. He worked hard at Lowell, and was the first player on the ice before every practice, reebok nfl jersey, says his old coach, Billy Riley.

He still could end up back with the Falcons, replica nfl jerseys, florida state football jersey, but I think that will come only after he tests the market.

One other tidbit about the Falcons. Although a lot of people are just assuming cornerback Domonique Foxworth automatically will re-sign with the Falcons after turning in a very nice season for them, yellow oregon ducks football jersey, wisconsin badgers football jersey, I’m hearing that’s probably not going to happen. All indications are Foxworth thinks he can get starter’s money and wants to test the free-agent market.

I've been saying all along not to get your hopes up too high. Dimitroff and coach Mike Smith are committed to building the Falcons through the draft and a high-priced free agent doesn't really fit the plan. Yes, Nike new NFL jerseys, replica NFL jerseys, the Falcons need a defensive tackle to replace Grady Jackson, Chinese NFL jerseys, but that will come through the draft or in the form of a mid-level free agent.

Atlanta general manager Thomas Dimitroff came out this morning and pretty much said the Falcons won't be making a play for Haynesworth. While that may disappoint many, MLB baseball jerseys, authentic football jersey, it's not a surprise.

The Pittsburgh Steelers were last season's poster children for the NFL's increased policing of big hits. As the league's most physical defense, Nike NFL pro combat uniforms, replica NHL jerseys, Pittsburgh players were getting fined or suffered questionable flags regularly during their run to Super Bowl XLV.

[+] Enlarge Charles LeClaire/US Presswire Pittsburgh linebacker James Harrison received more than $100,000 in fines from the NFL last season. On Wednesday, NFL vice president Ray Anderson said in a conference call that the league will be even more stern in disciplining players next season, college football jerseys, hockey jersey logos, especially repeat offenders. That is not good news for Pittsburgh.

But will the Steelers soften their stance? Pittsburgh's biggest strength is its physicality and aggressiveness. It's a major part of the team's identity and storied history.

The Steelers led the league in run defense by a wide margin last season and intimidated quarterbacks with an NFL-best 48 sacks. But according to Anderson, many of those big hits that resulted in fines and personal fouls could lead to suspensions in 2011, football jersey for dogs, which would hurt Pittsburgh in subsequent games.

The Steelers were not shy about venting their frustration. In February they seemed to enjoy using the league's biggest platform -- the Super Bowl -- to call out the NFL. Linebacker James Harrison, last season's most-fined player, suggested the league provide pillows on the field for players he tackled. Harrison's teammates joined in the fray throughout Super Bowl week, complaining how the league has softened.

Unless the Steelers themselves decide to play softer, we could be heading for another collision course. It's hard to change a team's identity overnight. So expect more controversy, fines and verbal jousting between Pittsburgh and the NFL in 2011.

I know a lot of Atlanta fans have been hoping the Falcons would make a run at free-agent defensive tackle Albert Haynesworth. Well, hockey jersey patches, Nike NFL equipment, wholesale NFL jerseys, it's not going to happen.
